FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE

CENAPPS TECHNOLOGIES, INC. ANNOUNCES NEW HOSTED SOLUTION ScheduleCom "On-Demand" provides zero footprint schedule communications.

July 18, 2007: CenApps Technologies, the leader in employee schedule communications, has announced that its ScheduleCom software will be made available as a fully hosted service. "Providing ScheduleCom as a software service will deliver the functionality of the full ScheduleCom software but at a much lower cost of ownership. This new platform is targeted at producers who don't necessarily need integration to other systems and may have a difficult time justifying the installation costs of the traditional model," says Vann Brauning, President of CenApps Technologies.

ScheduleCom is a voice based schedule publishing and retrieval system designed to accelerate the process of communicating schedule information to employees in dynamic work environments. Traditional users of the ScheduleCom product were required to provide a server to run the software and a telephony infrastructure to provide for phone access. The hosted version requires only a web browser as the application is hosted completely by CenApps, including the telephony component. Drivers simply call the provided 800 number to retrieve their schedule once it is published.

ScheduleCom "On-Demand" is currently in beta testing and will be commercially available in the coming months. Pricing and plans have yet to be determined but company officials indicated there would be no up-front installation fees and the subscription would be based on a simple monthly payment model. An initial free trial offer is also planned to give prospective customers the ability to determine if the new platform is right for them.

CenApps Technologies, Inc. is based in Lincoln, CA and was formed in 1998 specifically to provide Internet centric applications to the business community. They have been successfully delivering the ScheduleCom communications software to the Construction Materials market for the past three years.
